

GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Australian Journal of Parapsychology welcomes theoretical or experimental papers on all topics to do with the paranormal, including extra-sensory perception, psychokinesis, and life after death. We are open to new ideas and will consider all submissions. Note, however, that we are not a 'New Age' or religious journal. Our basic aim is to present articles that are accessible to the intelligent layperson, although we usually have at least one technical article in each issue. To make the editorial task easier we ask that contributors submit articles in the style and format exemplified in this journal, which follows the style authorised by the American Psychological Association (APA). In particular, a theoretical or experimental paper must include an abstract and a reference section that follows this style. Note that we use Australian rather than American spelling. All submissions, other than book reviews and correspondence, are peer-reviewed. For further details, go to:
