Backfire

Despite popular misconception, curses do not always backfire. They only backfire in a few situations: 1) You must have a genuine reason to be cursing the target 2) You must feel not the slightest bit of remorse for the target 3) If you believe it will backfire, it will; dispose of all thoughts of the “thre-fold law” and such other nonsense 4) You must keep silent about your curse forever. If you do not follow these guidelines, you risk backfire.

There are ways to protect from possible backfire, the best of which is to form a relationship with a spirit who will protect you. I recommend Hecate, as she is the goddess of witchcraft. In the vocal part of your curse, you can always put in a clause stating that you will not suffer from your curse.

Breaking and Reversing a Curse

Extinguish a Curse

Items you need: a black candle a black bowl.
Olive oil with garlic in it Lunar water tobacco
connection to the caster of the curse

If you have the caster's DNA, hair for example, wrap it around the candle. Anoint the candle with garlic oil, if possible. Carve their name into the candle. Get a pic of them and write their full name and birth date on the pic. Chop off the top of the candle, turn it upside down and carve a new wick on what was before the bottom of the candle. You have now “reversed” the candle. Melt wax from the candle onto the bottom of the bowl, just enough so you can place the candle into it so it will sit firmly. Fill the bowl up with lunar water, as close to the wick as you can get without getting the wick wet. Put the tobacco leaves into the water. Light the candle. Visualize the flame as the curse that was cast on you. When the flame reaches the water and extinguishes, the curse has been extinguished.

Reverse Back to Sender 1

Items you need:

a small bowl

charcoal

salt

connection to the caster of the curse

small mirror

a box

Use 2 parts charcoal to one part salt. Grind it up until you have black salt. Pour black salt into the bowl. Place the small mirror on one side of the bowl and the connection to the caster on the other side. Visualize the spell they cast hitting the mirror and rebounding back to them. Place this into the box and bury the box at a crossroads—bury it anywhere but on your own property

Reverse Back to Sender 2

Take a black candle, cut the top off, turn the candle upside down, and carve a new wick on the bottom.. This is called "butting" the candle. The symbolism is turning the situation around.

Carve the name of the person that cursed you into the candle "backwards." For example, "Bob Smith" would be written "htimS boB"... If you don't know the name of the person who cursed you.. then you can just carve "my enemy" into the candle.. Thus, "ymene my." Again.. the symbolism.. is reversing something.. turning it around.

Then.. You burn the candle on a mirror... (reflecting back the curse or hex) And anoint with reversing oils.. Once finished.. you take it to a crossroads or bury it in the woods..

So.. Candle turned upside down and new wick carved on bottom.. Name of person cursing you written backwards.. Burned on a mirror (reflecting back).. The symbolism throughout is sending it "back."

A Few Curses

A curse is an act of war, so it is best to evoke Mars and ask for him to help make the curse stronger. Draw the astrological glyph of Mars in red ink on green construction paper or vice versa. Get a black or red bowl and some 91% rubbing alcohol. Pour the alcohol into the bowl. The more Mars associations around the bowl, the better, such as garlic, peppermint, iron, etc. Gaze at the glyph while chanting "Mars, Mars, Mars," until it starts to change—it will shimmer or change color. Lines may disappear and reappear.. This is how you know you have made a connection with the spirit. Light the bowl of alcohol on fire and scry the flames. Ask Mars for his blessing for your curse.

Simple Curse

All you need is a compass, a connection to the target and your written curse for them. Find out what direction they are in in relation to yourself. Face that direction. Hold up the connection to the target. Visualize gazing through it and through the walls, imagine you can see the person and what they are doing at that moment. Work up your rage at the person. Get yourself into a frenzy of hate and state your curse. This is very simple, but very effective. When you are done, burn the connection to the target.

Simple Curse 2

Items needed:

Black candle

Connection to the target

Wait until you are sure the target is sleeping. That is when they are most vulnerable. Turn out the lights and sit at a table on which sits only the lone black candle. Light the candle. Hold the connection to the target in your left hand. Visualize the flame as the power of your curse. Hold your left hand in a fist above the flame until you feel your hand get warm. State your prewritten curse. Allow the candle to burn you a little. Allow the candle to burn all the way down. Burn the connection to the target and bury the wax at a crossroads.

Wrath Jar

Items needed

War Water

9 fish hooks

shards of broken glass

nine nails

nine needles sulfur ceyanne pepper

nine tacs

connection to target

The ingredients here can vary, but you get the idea. Sharp things that can cause damage. Make your war water by filling a jar with water and salt and placing nails or anything from the above list in it. Eventually the water will turn rust red. This is war water. Throw all the other items into the jar, including the connection to the target. The SULFUR IS NECESSARY. Hold the jar every once in a while for a few days and shake it up and state your vocal curse. Work up your anger. After three days of this, pour the contents out onto the target's property.

Ring of Fire

Items:

If possible, a dirty or clean article of clothing once worn by the target. If not possible, any kind of cloth will do

Needle and thread, scissors, dirt (graveyard dirt would be best)

A connection to the target

gasoline

wooden matches

hammer

Make the article of clothing into a doll to represent the target. Fill it with the dirt and if you put the connection to the target inside it and sew it up. Find somewhere private outside. SOAK YOURSELF HEAD TO TOE WITH WATER, EVERY INCH OF YOUR BODY MUST BE WET, FOR SAFETY. Pour the gasoline in a large circle on the ground. You will be standing inside this circle, so make it big enough so that you do not get burnt. 9 feet should be sufficient. Stand inside the circle with the doll and the hammer and the matches. Build up your rage at the target. Feel your rage burning inside you. Hate them. Become furious and frenzied. Let it all out. Set the circle on fire and while you are in that ring of fire, beat the hell out of the doll with the hammer. Let all your frustrations out. When the fire goes out, bury the doll in the center of the circle.
