

Merlin

Merlin's prophecy when he was discovered:

Woe to the red Dragon, which figureth the British Nation for his Banishment cometh quickly; his wurling holes shall be seized by the white dragon - the Saxon whom thou, O King, hast called to the land. The mountains shall be levelled as the valleys, and the rivers of the valleys shall run blood; cities shall be burned, & churches have in ruins; till at length the oppressed shall turn for a season & prevail against the strangers.

For a BEAR OF CORNWALL shall arise & rend them, and trample their necks beneath his feet. The island shall be subject to his power, and he shall take the forests of Gaul. The hoine of Romulus shall dread him - all the world shall fear him - and his end roman shall know; he shall be immortal in the mouths of the people & his words shall be food to those that tell them!

When King Vortigern had tried to build a tower of refuge at here it fell collapsing. He was told to fetch a bag of 'NO-MORTAL RATHER'. He did this, and the bag - Merlin - saw to dig beneath the tower. He said they would find a pool, drawn the pool & they would find 2 dragons - 1 red - 1 white. The 2 dragons so fought, the white one won. Merlin gave the above prophecy. Prophecying the coming of King Arthur.

It seems strange that 'D. Brock is a Bear of Cornwall' and that his 'words are food to those that tell them'!

Vortigern fled to his home / tower + was killed by the future King Aurelius. Soon though, many Britons were killed by the Saxons. Aurelius consulted Merlin on how to bury them with respect, Merlin's reply was to do with Stonehenge.

Merlin + Stonehenge

'If you would honour the burying of these men,' said Merlin 'with an everlasting monument, send for the GIANTS DANCE which is in KILLARAU, a mountain in IRELAND; for there is a structure of stone there which NONE OF THIS AGE could raise without a PERFECT KNOWLEDGE

OF THE ARTS. They are stones of a vast size & wondrous nature, & said if they can be placed here as they are there, round this spot of ground, they will stand for ever.

..... those stones are mystical & have healing virtues. The giants of old brought them from the furthest coast of AFRICA and placed them in Ireland while they lived in that country; and their designs were to make baths in them, for use in times of grievous illness. For if they washed in the stones & put the sick into the water it certainly healed them, as also it did them that were wounded in battle; and there is no stone amongst them but hath the same virtues.

..... Merlin contrived machines of unusual cunning, to move the stones. He also raised them up on Salisbury and called them 'Stonehenge'.
* Aurelius died. A big Comet was sighted.
+ Uther was made King.

The Pendragon

~~a Gold~~ One of a pair of gold dragons made by Uther Pendragon on Merlin's idea. One he gave to Winchester Cathedral, & the other he carried into battle. It was a sign of the Comet, that prophesied Uther having a son who would rule.

Before the baby was born Merlin spoke about him

Arthur's Birth

I know a lord of thine in this land who is a man both true & faithful, let him have the nourishing of the child. His name is Sir ECTOR, when the child is born, let him be delivered unto me, UNCHRISTENED, at yonder postern gate. Merlin then dressed as a poor man and took Arthur to be christened by a holy priest. Then he was raised by Sir Ector & his wife.
