Explanatory diagram of the astrological and alphabetical Tablet of Bembo

Explanation

The hebrew alphabet is divided into 3 mother letters - Aleph, Mem, Shin. 7 double letters - Beth, Ghemel, Daleth, Kaph, Pe, Resh, Tau, and 12 simple letters - He, Vau, Zain, Hetz, Teth, Yod, Kamed, Mem, Samech, Ayin, Tsaddi, Quoph.

The basis of absolute hieroglyphical science was an alphabet in which deities were represented by letters, letters represented ideas, ideas were converted into numbers and numbers were the perfect signs. The hieroglyphic alphabet was the great secret which Moses enshrined in the Kabbalah. Its Egyptian origin is commemorated in the Sepherah Yebzirah, in which it is referred to Abraham. Nautilus alphabet is the famous book of Thoth, and it was discovered by Count de Gebelin, that it has been preserved to our own day in the form of Tarot Cards. It passed later on into the hands of Elipha, who interpreted it in a wrong sense, for even a shrewd esotericist over 30 yrs could not alone get the want of common sense, or supply [1]

The record exists still among the drift & waste of the Egyptian monuments, and its most curious, most complete key is found in the great work on Egypt by Athanasius Kircher. It is a copy of an Isiac Tablet which belonged to the celebrated Cardinal Berbo. The tablet in question is of copper with figures in enamel, and it has been unfortunately lost. The copy supplied by Kircher is however, exact. The learned Jesuit divined that it contained the hieroglyphic key of sacred alphabets, though he was unable to develop the explanation. It is divided into 3 equal compartments; above are the 12 houses of heaven, and below are the corresponding distribution of labour throughout the year while in the middle place are 21 sacred signs answering the letters of the alphabet. In the midst of all is a seated figure of the pantomorphix Iyx, emblem of universal being & corresponding as such to the letter yca or to that unique letter from which all other letters were formed. The Iyx is encircled by the ophite head, answering to the 3 major letters of the Egyptian & Hebrew alphabet. On the right are the bimorphic & serapim heads, on the left are the moons of Nephthys & Hecate, representing active & passive, fixed & volatile, fructifying fire & generating water. Each pair of heads in conjunction with the centre produces a septenary, and a septenary is contained in the centre. The 3 septenaries furnish the absolute number of the 3 worlds, as well as the complete number of primordial letters, to which a complementary sign is added, like 6 to be 9 numerals. The 10 numbers & 22 letters are teamed in Kabbalism the 32 paths of ~~the~~ WISDOM.
